'In his person he rose above the common height, but his lank limbs & figure were destitute of elegance or of grace. . . . Reflection & caution seemed to be stamped on every feature, while his eyes were usually, even in conversation, directed downwards towards the earth. Something impervious & inscrutable seemed to accompany & to characterize his demeanour. His manners were polite, calm, & unassuming; grave, if not cold; but not distant, without any mixture of pride or affectation.'—Sir N. W. WRAXALL, Hist. Memoirs, II., p. 209.

G—O.

The first column contains the family names, and the inferior titles by which the peers were at any time known, as also their Scotch and Irish titles. The family name covers all clergymen, younger sons of peers, baronets, knights, and esquires, who became peers. The second column contains the highest titles, which are arranged alphabetically in this volume. This second list includes a few foreign titles by which English peers were anciently summoned to parliament.
